The West Publishing Company's Docket, a reliable publication, gives the output for the courts for 1914. From it we glean the following facts:

In that year the Supreme Court Trustees of State Library. handed down 94 opinions. There were five judges of the court and this was an average of 19 opinions per judge. The average length of each opinion by actual count was 3,462 words. Now let us compare these figures with other states. In the first place we find only seven other states in the Union in which as few opinions are of Vermont. In Arizona, the number of opinions per year is 86, in Nevada 69, in New Hampshire 77, in Ohio 73, one year, is 1,841 in the state of size of it.

Only four states in the Union have 12, New Hampshire 15, Ohio 10, Wy- ture of state funds and fix the reoming 11.

There can be no question that the state can hold them personally re- vember 7 he should consider the mont de not have as many cases to make and then we can reduce the exconsider or opinions to write as they do in the average state. Who Spends State Money.

Through the comparative statement of state expenses we learn that the expenditures for the biennial ending June 30, 1916, totalled $4,513,753, an average of almost two and a quarter millions a year, or $6.35 for every man, woman and child in the state. We are surprised at the amount of money the state is spending, but it spending it. Just as a matter of information we give a list of the state officers and commissions compiled by John M. Avery, librarian of the Legislative Reference Bureau. Here they are classified according to the method of their election or appointment:

Elected by the people: Governor, Auditor of Accounts, Secretary of State, Attorney General.

They should have stated meetings and keep close watch on the conduct of the state business and in general have charge of the purchase sistant judges employed. Why should of all supplies for the state. The salaries of these three men should be made commensurate with the importance of their position. The governor should be the head of such a board because he is responsible for the conduct of the state business and should be in a position to control it. It might interfere somewhat with his appearance at public gatherings, but we believe he could do the state more service as manager than as a talker at public functions. With such a board created and given authority to conduct business, boards of trustees for the different state institutions could be abolished and a superintendent capable of managing the institution in his charge put at the head of the different institutions like the State Hospital for Insane, the state prison, etc.

The state treasurer should collect all the revenues of the state and perform the duties now performed by lieutenant Governor, State Treasurer, the commissioner of taxes. The inspection of industrial plants, settlement of industrial disputes and awarding of compensation to injured employes should be handled by one board. We also like the recommencontrol of one commissioner of pub-

> Democratic Financial Failure. "During the first fourteen days of October the administration spent $20,451,000 more than the government revenues-an average deficit of more than $1,400,000 a day," says the Manchester Journal. This is a staterecords. This deficit comes after the democratic party has carried out its ment revenues by striking off the revenues from duties on imports and levying taxes on American citizens and industries. There is only one way to meet this deficit and that is by an issue of bonds to pay the ordinary expenses of the government. The folly of such a course must be apparent to any intelligent person.

That the republican policy of protecting American industries is a better way to meet that crisis than the policy of democratic free trade is self evident. When the Diseased Cattle Market.

During the past ten years the state James Hatch, Sunday. of Vermont has paid for a cattle commissioner, testing of cattle and for cattle killed as follows: In 1907. $33,425.90; in 1908, $65,399.84; in 93; in 1913, $30,593.15; in 1914, $36,-874.16; in 1915, $34,367.24, and in 1916, $40,658.65. This makes the of McIndoes is doing the work. total for ten years $469,633.84-almost a half million of dollars.

That there is less tuberculosis among the cattle of Vermont than there was ten years ago is not to be doubted, that it has been eradicated or that the cattle of the state have been enirely free from it at any time during he ten years is not believed by anyone. It would seem as though at its low obb of the present is the proper time to eradicate this disease from the cattle of Verment.

It cannot be cleared out by the maintainance of a salaried cattle commissioner authorized to expend limited amount each year. The present system simply allows the cattle owners to sell about $30,000 worth or diseased cattle to the state each year and the balance goes to pay the commissioner and official testers.

When thinking about the reduction of state expenses remember there are only six states in the Union with a smaller area and only four with a smaller population; that only six states have a higher governmental cost per capita; and that the average cost of state governments for all jorie on her way home from Canada. the states is $4.06 but in Vermont it is $7.68. The probable cause for this is the large number of officials and commissions in the state. Surely Vermont ought to reduce the number of its commissions and bring its state expenses per capita nearer to
